

Severe Weather Possible Monday

OVERVIEW <ul style="list-style-type: none">Showers and embedded thunderstorms are expected late Monday into Monday night, ahead of an approaching cold front. Severe storms are possible, with the main threat being locally damaging wind gusts.		TIMING <ul style="list-style-type: none">5-9 PM across the VA Piedmont7-11 PM near the I-95 Corridor8 PM-1 AM near the coast
 Slight Risk Marginal Risk		HAZARDS & IMPACTS <ul style="list-style-type: none">Damaging Wind: Wind gusts of 45-60 mph could down trees and power lines and result in scattered power outages.Tornadoes: An isolated tornado is possible (mainly west of I-95).Heavy Rainfall: Brief, locally heavy rainfall is expected. However, the flash flooding risk is extremely low.
		NWS ALERTS <ul style="list-style-type: none">Marginal to Slight Risk of Severe Storms (Threat level 1 to 2 out of 5).
TSTORM No severe storms expected MARGINAL Isolated severe possible SLIGHT Scattered severe possible ENHANCED Numerous severe possible MODERATE Widespread severe likely HIGH Widespread severe expected		ADDITIONAL INFORMATION <ul style="list-style-type: none">There is still some uncertainty with respect to timing. Please continue to monitor the latest forecasts, and be sure to stay weather aware on Monday.Assure you have multiple ways to receive warnings.